Parenting interventions to support parent/child attachment and psychosocial adjustment in foster and adoptive parents and children: A systematic review
Dalgaard, Nina T; Filges, Trine; Viinholt, Bjørn C A; Pontoppidan, Maiken.
Campbell Systematic Reviews; Oslo Vol. 18, Iss. 1, (Mar 2022).

摘要 (摘要)

Background
Adopted children and children placed in foster care are at increased risk of developing a range of behavioural, and psychosocial adjustment problems. Previous studies suggest that due to early separation and loss some children may have difficulties forming a secure attachment relationship with adoptive/foster parents.

Objectives
The objectives of the present review were: (1) to assess the efficacy of attachment-based interventions and measures of favourable parent/child outcomes (attachment security, dyadic interaction, parent/child relationship quality, and psychosocial adjustment, behavioural and mental health problems, and placement breakdown) with adoptive families with children aged between 0 and 17 years. (2) to identify factors that appear to be associated with more effective outcomes and factors that modify intervention effectiveness (e.g., age of the child at placement and at intervention start, programme duration, programme focus).

Search Methods
Relevant studies were identified through electronic searches of bibliographic databases, governmental and grey literature repositories, hand search in specific targeted journals, citation tracking, contact to international experts and Internet search engines. The database searches were carried out to October 2020.

Selection Criteria
The interventions of interest were parenting interventions aimed at helping the foster/adopted children and their parents to form or...
